

Attack - By SIEGFRIED JASSOON

Rough days out at war
At dusk they all snore
The outfits are army-core
The lucky come back to their home-door.

My static image represents the struggles of war.
The body bags symbolise the poor, unlucky souls that unfortunately do not make it.

The red poppies beside the fallen soldiers represent how things happen for a reason and that hope can appear.

Finally, the unfinished lines and uncoloured patches I have designed show how war is unfinished. Even now genocides exist and just because one war is finished doesn't mean it won't occur today ♡
